RICHMOND, August 2, 1879. Editors Dispatch: I think I have solved the problem set forth by "X." in to-day's Dispatch.

The amount of whiskey remaining in the cask when the farmer returns (at the end of ten days) is 3.486784401 gallons.

The State Committee and the Conservative Party. It will be seen from a notice elsewhere published that a meeting of the State Conservative Committee has been called in Richmond on the 7th instant. This action has not been taken a day too soon. It is high time the Conservative party of Virginia was organized and equipped for the contest that awaits it.

It is well known that the leaders of the renegade Conservatives, Independents, Radicals, and negroes who met in Mozart Hall last February are engaged in strenuous efforts to gain adherents for the new party which they have organized, and that in the fall elections the Conservative party will find itself confronted by its old enemy, the Radical party, reinforced by the disaffected and place-seekers from our own ranks, all falsely claiming to be readjusters. Their emissaries are "going to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it," as did their have been permitted to have their own way long enough, and the time has come when their trickery and falsehood should be exbe to call a State Convention of the Conservative party, that party lines may be distinetly drawn, the party organization fully periected, and these agitators be no longer permitted to wage war upon it under the guise of Conservatism. . The men who parplan of organization, appointed State, district, and county committees, ipso facto severed their connection with the Conservative party, and can receive no recognition from that party save such as it accords to its

The issue which they offer is one upon which the Conservative party can enter the canvass assured of success. The McCulloch bill is a Conservative measure, adopted by the Conservative members of the General Assembly over the combined vote of the Independents and Radicals. It meets both in letter and spirit the demands of the party as set forth in the platform adopted by the convention which met in August, 1877, being an "adjustment of the obligations of the Commonwealth which will bring the payment of interest upon our entire indebtness within the resources derived from the present rate of taxation and do equal justice to all classes of our creditors."

It is a more favorable settlement than the leading agitators themselves proposed, appropriating $280,000 less to the payment of interest than the Barbour bill, the pet measure of the agitators. It is more favorable to the State than the Bocock-Fowler bill in that it only provides for the pay ment of half the accrued interest, while that bill provided that certificates should be issued for the whole of the accrued and unpaid interest. For ten years it reduces the rate of interest to the very lowest rate ever proposed by the most ultra readjusters, and no objection can be alleged against it that would not apply equally to any other plan of settlement at the same rate, intended to be carried out in good faith. The Conservative party, standing on the McCulloch compromise, occupies an impregnable position, against which the agitators will hurl themselves only to accomplish their own destruction. Collecting a State Debt.

SUGGESTIONS BY A UNITED STATES SENATOR. [Correspondence of the Nashville American.] FRANKLIN, TENN., July 25 .- The event of the day for Franklin has been the discussion between Senator James E. Bailey and Colonel John H. Savage, pro and con, upon the subject of the State debt. Senator Bailey's speech was a fire plea for the honor, credit, and dignity of the State and its people. I the whole of his argument, but the following is the substance of a portion of it in reference to a possible mode that might be taken by the bondbolders for the collection of their claims against the State, which I think may be new and interesting to some of your readers:

He said the Egyptian Government had become indebted to the inhabitants of certain European countries, and the Knedive failing to meet the interest thereon, the nations holding the Egyptian bonds demanded of the Porte to remove the Khedive. The Porte yielded and overturned that Government. This was a kind of precedent and a mode, whether legal or otherwise, in which one nation had collected a debt from another. Now, he continued, both branches of Congress are in the hands of the Democrats, but it is possible, even probable, that they may fall some day into the hands of the Republicans. The Republicans, or a large class of that party, believe in the sacrifice and destruction of all State-rights and interests for the aggrandizement of the General Government, and regard the Government as almost a nation, and would so have foreign Powers look upon her. Hence, what is done by a part of the nation or State should be looked upon as affecting the whole. Some of the bonds are held by her Mujesty Queen Victoria. What if Tennessee should repudiate and England should demand payment? The result would be an official correspondence. What then? What if the United States Government should then undertake to collect the debt? How could she proceed? Colonel Bailey here read the fourteenth amendment, and called attention to the enforcement act, and said that they would proceed upon the idea that the State cannot destroy the property of any one, and must make all persons secure in the enjoyment of the that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver same under the United States Con- and all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia, and Sick stitution. This, he said, he believed to be unconstitutional and illegal. But had nothing unconstitutional and illegal been done hitherto? He had seen many things done that, when he was a boy, he did not expect ever to see. He had seen the negroes set free; he had seen freemen marched about and tyrannized over with the bayonets, and he had seen of late bills for the good of the country unconstitutionally vetoed by the President; and he placed little confidence in a question of constitutionality under the circumstances and in a case involving so much, and it was in the bounds of possibility that we might see Federal tax-gatherers sent down who would collect the 100 cents on the dollar, with 6 per cent. interest, to the last farthing. swer one of the arguments made by Colo-

Colonel Savage scarcely attempted to aunel Balley, making pretty much his usual speech. His attack upon Colonel Balley's record was highly amusing.
